

Age requirements and restricted callings

This information sheet provides information on minimum age requirements and restricted callings in apprenticeships and traineeships in Queensland.

Information to get you started

Age requirements

Entry in to apprenticeships and traineeships is limited to individuals who are 13 years of age or older. The Department of Education and Training (DET) may consider applications for persons under the age of 13 in exceptional circumstances.

Where the apprentice or trainee is under 18 years of age at the date of signing the training contract, details of the parent or guardian and their signature, are required.

The ultimate responsibility for compliance with age requirements that exist and are enforceable under Queensland legislation rests with employers.

For further information on minimum age requirements for school-based apprenticeships or traineeships please refer to the school-based apprenticeships and traineeships information sheet.

Restricted callings

Restrictions apply to the rights of employers to employ staff under the age of 21 years to certain jobs, or 'callings'. Employers may not employ a person under the age of 21 years in jobs that appear in the list of restricted callings, unless:

- the prospective employee has completed a qualification or statement of attainment relevant to the calling; or
- he or she is employed by the employer as an apprentice or trainee in the calling under the registered training contract.

A list of the apprenticeships and traineeships declared as restricted callings can be found on the Queensland Training Information Service (QTIS) website.
